Two New Industries For Ocean Beach

Workman have been busy preparing the interior of the large building at 5068 Niagara avenue for the occupancy of the Earle Products Co., manufacturers of "Espanola," a splendid new table relish which has found great favor with the trade. Edward Earle, formerly of Glendale, Calif., is the guiding spirit of the new concern, and states that full particulars of his factory and announcement of opening will be duly given in these columns.

CITIZEN SCORES MERCHANTS AND OTHERS FOR UNPROFITABLE PRACTICE

(A. G. Stacey in San Diego Union)

May spiders weave their webs over the doors and dust gather on the shelves of those who daily litter the lawns of residents with appeals to purchase "bankrupt," "water stained," "shelf-worn," "damaged" goods that are said to be offered at "prices lower than cost." After twenty years' experience with these pests, I can well understand the affliction of locusts and lice sent upon the Egyptians during the captivity of the Israelites. Each day we must bend our backs gathering hand bills and circulars cast broad and deep over the grass we have been fondly coaxing into a semblance of green.

The men and firms guilty of such trespass are never to be found in the columns of newspapers that find welcome in the homes of our people, and I sometimes question whether they are even readers of the daily news, and yet say "The papers are no account." These pests prefer association with the vermin and bugs in the trash and garbage cans rather than with the intelligent readers of the newspapers where may be found dignified invitations on the part of real business men to inspect stocks of various kinds that are without taint of "rum-running," as the literature (heaven save the term!) of the business pirates only too often indicates.

It is true that many of our lawns are infested with "devil grass," as we term the Bermuda variety, but that is a blessing direct from above when compared with the trash, printed trash, that causes the man of the house to lose some of his religion when compelled to gather up the circulars, and the housewife to lose part of her divine nature when hubby brings it in for her to dispose of.

In a manner the newspaper sponsors the legitimate advertisers to be found spread in the columns of the paper, and says to the reader, "You may safely patronize this firm." But the sponsor of the lawn advertiser must be the Evil One himself, who is constantly seeking to cause men and women to lose their tempers and Bushman, Chester Conklin, Roy thus secure probationers in his already crowded ranks.

IN MEMORIAM MRS. A. S. THOMAS

SUDDEN DEMISE OF ACTIVE WOMAN WORKER AND PHILANTHROPIST

Mourned among a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Southern California, Mrs. Agnes Shields Thomas passed suddenly to her great reward last Saturday afternoon while visiting in San Diego. She was widely and most favorably known in Ocean Beach, where she resided with her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Goldberg, of 4956 Voltaire street.

The deceased was born in Tubble-Curry, Sligo County, Ireland, in 1861, and came to America when she was sixteen years of age, becoming a resident of St. Louis, Mo., where she was married, Sept. 1, 1880, to John B. Thomas, of Nancy, Alsace, France. Four children, who survive her, were the result of the happy union, two girls being born in St. Louis and two sons being native Californians. Those deeply bereaved by the loss of their beloved mother include Mrs. Sam Goldberg, of Ocean Beach; Mrs. Adele Wilson, of Thomas-Wilson Grocery Co., 1417 Lemoyne street, Los Angeles; John E and Dan N. Thomas, of Thomas Bros.' sheet metal works, 1714½ Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles. She is also survived by five grandchildren, Miss Adele Anderson, Misses Katherine, Bettie, and Jeannette Thomas, and Master John Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas came to California forty years ago and for the last thirty years had been active in busines life in San Diego and Los Angeles. She had often expressed the wish to close the last chapter of her life at Ocean Beach, where she and her husband, the late Mr. John B. Thomas, so dearly loved to reside. The many friends in Ocean Beach and Los Angeles will most sadly miss this sweet woman worker, who performed her numerous deeds of sympathy and acts of philanthropy in a very quiet and motherly manner.

In conformity with the desire of the deceased, her remains were cremated and her ashes were interred in the grave of her husband at Hollywood cemetery. "Peace be unto her!"

INCREASE IN PAY GRANTED RETIRED MEN UNDER NEW LAW

Members of the retired lists of the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard and public health service have been benefited by congressional action equalizing their retired pay and putting it on a par with that of men retired since the joint service pay act went into effect July 1, 1922.

This act increased the pay of those on the active list and those who were retired after it went into effect, but it left those previously retired with the lower rates of pay prevailing.

The new law affects a large number of retired army, navy, marine corps and coast guard officers residing at San Diego.

BLUE AND ORANGE SUMMER DECORATIONS

Both the exterior and interior of the Ocean Beach Cleaners' establishment at 1928 Bacon street have been greatly improved for the summer season. Proprietor Ralph D. Crapo has had a very attractive blue and orange awning affixed to the front of the building and a large, serviceable canopy in the same pleasing colors adorns the interior as a special protection to patrons' apparel. The entire improvement is highly commendable.

GOBS DON'T LIKE BELL-BOTTOMED PANTS

A Universal Service news special from Washington states that the sailors of Uncle Sam's navy are raising a lusty protest over wearing bell-bottomed trouseds. The sailors want a a neat but not tricky uniform. They ask that the "pancake" hat be changed for caps with a visor, and that those blouses with the natty, boyish collars open at the throat be changed to sensible double-breasted jackets.

In announcing Cecil B. DeMille's production of "Three Faces East," the feature picture attraction for Thursday and Friday, the Granada management has this to say: "We have looked at many pictures, we have thrilled and chilled and laughed and cried with the best and the worst of them, but never have we witnessed a picture so filled with gripping mystery, exceptional dramatic power and remarkable situations as 'Three Faces East,' which features Jetta Goudal, supported by Robert Ames, Clive Brook and Henry B. Walthall." The picture is an adaptation of the play by Anthony Paul Kelly, and was produced as a picture by Rupert Julian under the auspices of Cecil B. Demille. "Three Faces East" is more than 100 per cent screen entertainment—it is, from start to finish a breath-taking, alluring, fascinating spectacle, second to none produced within the decade.

Wave Trap Will Cut Out Loud Locals—The Conductively Couple Form and the Inductively Coupled.

Due to the widespread increase in power of many of our broadcasting stations, the need for some sort of apparatus capable of cutting out strongly interfering stations, is becoming felt more and more. There is not much fun in sitting through the program of one particular station night after night, especially when a better program is being offered by some other station which is drowned out by the nearer or more powerful transmitter. "Interfering signals," writes Howard E. Rhodes in the Radio Broadcast magazine, "sometimes are caused by driect pickup by the coils of the set so that its natural selectivity is of no avail in eliminating them. This occurs when the set is being operated in proximity to a broadcasting station, with the result that the field strength in the vicinity is great enough to induce currents directly in the various coils of the receiver. Under these conditions it will be found possible to hear the program with the antenna disconnected.

"The only practical methods to be used in elimnating this type of interference are either shielding of the receiver or using some form of closed-field coil, such as a toroid. If the set is to be shielded, it is necessary to line the entire inside of the cabinet, including the cover and the panel, with thin copper. Any joints in the copper sheet are soldered together and connection is finally made between the shield and the minus A terminal which, in this instance, is connected to ground. This puts the entire shield at ground potential, thereby excluding from the coils any external electrical fields. It should also be pointed out that this shielding will also eliminate any interference caused by power lines, motors, etc., provided they are causing trouble by setting up currents directly in the coils. However, if the interference is reaching the set by way of the antenna system, shielding will be no aid. The use of toroid coils is coming into very common use in instances where there is need of an inductor that is unaffected by external fields."

Why Toroid Coil Is Favored.

The gist of Mr. Rhodes' explanation why the toroid type of coil is recommended for use where ordinary coils will cause broad tuning by their pick-up qualities, is as follows: Toroid coils will, as is the case with other coils, have induced in their turns currents which ordinarily would nullify the selective qualities of a receiver. However, the voltages induced in opposite halves of the coil, oppose each other, and the resultant effective pick-up voltage is zero. This nullifying feature is apparent in several other types of coils, but is probably more so in the toroid. The article in Radio Broadcast continues as follows:

"There is a second type of interfering signal that causes considerable trouble, and against this type the two cures so far described are useless. If the signals being induced in the antenna are sufficiently strong, it is possible that a receiver may not have a selectivity sharp enough to eliminate them completely, although its selectivity under ordinary conditions may be perfectly satisfactory. For instance, the receiver might be operated at a location quite close to a powerful broadcasting station so that the signal strength from this station in comparison with the strength of the signals that it is desired to receive from other stations is so great as to produce considerable interference, even though the receiver is considerably detuned from the interfering signal. It is apparent then, that, in some way, this powerful signal must be impeded so as to decrease its strength. The most common piece of apparatus for use in this connection is the so-called wave trap which is actually a filter circuit tuned to absorb the interfering signals. These wave traps are very easily constructed, and cost little. They consist merely of an ordinary coil and a condenser. The traps are connected in the antenna circuit and are adjusted so that, at the frequency of the interfering signal, they have a very high impedance, the exact value depending on whether the unit is connected in series or parallel with the antenna. This high impedance prevents the signal from passing down through the primary of the antenna coupling and so into the receiver. At the same time, these wave traps offer a very low impedance to all other frequencies.

Methods of Operation.

"There are several methods by which these traps might be operated. Fig. 1 shows the most common method. In the drawing L_1 C_1 constitutes the trap circuit and L_2 C_2 the antenna coupler and tuning condenser of the receiving set. It will be seen that the trap is connected between the antenna post of the receiver and the antenna lead-in. Fig. 2 represents a slightly different method of connecting the trap in the circuit. In this latter method, the wave trap is inductively coupled to the antenna. This inductive coupling is obtained by winding a few turns of wire about one end of the coil L_1. One end of this new winding connects to the antenna and the other to the antenna post of the receiver. This circuit is practically equivalent to that of Fig. 1 with the difference that somewhat sharper tuning is obtained.

"Whether the trap circuit of Fig. 1 or that of Fig. 2 is used, depends to a considerable extent upon the characteristics of the antenna system. A well insulated antenna with a short lead-in and a short ground wire to a good ground, such as the cold-water mains, gives best results with the inductively coupled circuit. Every effort should be made to have as good a ground and antenna as is possible, but if it is necessary to use a long ground lead to a rather poor ground system, the direct coupled wave trap will probably give better results.

"When using the latter method of direct coupling, as illustrated in Fig. 1, some small change in the tuning of the antenna condenser will be noticed, whereas with inductive coupling practically no change in tuning takes place. This represents a slight advantage in favor of inductive coupling since it will be possible to continue to use the same old dial readings after the trap has been installed.

"If the trap is poorly made," says Mr. Rhodes in conclusion, "it may not only eliminate the interfering signals but will also decrease the strength of those signals we desire to receive. The most common cause of poor results with wave traps is due to the use of high resistance coils and low-grade condensers. It is therefore essential that the trap operate efficiently, and in order to obtain such operation, it is generally best to use a fairly small coil and a large condenser. With a large coil the elimination is usually more complete but the neutralized band is larger so that the trap interferes with reception on wave lengths adjacent to that wave on which the interfering station is operating. Most satisfactory results are obtained when low loss coils are used, such as space wound solenoids, while a toroid may be used in the inductively coupled circuit."

FOR THE NOTEBOOK

The ideal aerial is one which is away from all interference.

There is more static in defective grid leaks than in all the heavens.

In making a loose coupler, both coils are wound in the same direction.

A crystal can be tested by hooking it in series with a 22½-volt "B" battery and a milliammeter. The reading should be 1½ or 2 milliamperes or better.

When the receiver is located in the suburbs or some distance away from the broadcasting station, a long aerial upward to 600 feet can be used to advantage.

The average life of a vacuum tube is from 1,000 to 2,000 hours' constant use.

It is poor policy to experiment with a set that is believed to be in perfect working order. One is apt to throw something out of adjustment, or even entirely ruin many of the parts.

Storage batteries should be given a drink of distilled water occasionally.

EXPOSES WILES OF FAKE STOCK SALESMEN AND PROMOTERS

Latest Methods of Confidence Men Described by American Bankers Association Official — Declares That Shrewder Schemes Than Ever Before Are Taking Peoples' Savings.

By W. R. MOREHOUSE,
Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association.

ARTICLE NO. I

MUCH of the distress of many people in America today is due, not to the fact that they have not had an opportunity to earn and save money, but to the fact that they have lost their savings in fraudulent schemes of one kind or another. Many a widow is in financial difficulty not because she was left penniless by her husband but because she lost her inheritance by investing it in "gold bricks." Many a bank depositor who once carried a fine balance is penniless today not because he did not know how to save but because he did not know how to invest.

W. R. Morehouse

Perhaps if I relate some wild-cat promotions that give an insight into the activities of investment sharks it will quicken a relentless determination to provide depositors with much needed advice in investment matters. I have come in personal contact with many cases, some of them almost unbelievable because of the very crookedness of the schemes to defraud, yet thousands of our hard-working savers have been led to invest their savings in these promotions. In giving the high lights of certain cases I am not drawing on my imagination in the least, nor am I relying on hearsay, but giving first-hand information.

Unbelievable but True

Many millions of dollars have been lost in oil. The sum is staggering. Into ever corner of the United States the mails carry high-powered sales talk of great riches to be made in oil. Carried away by these promises, depositors quietly withdraw funds from their banks and send them on to wild-cat speculators. Not one out of a hundred has ever recovered the money he invested. Still wild-cat promotions continue to flourish, with a new crop of victims coming up to take the place of those who are forced out of the running because they have already lost their savings.

From American Bankers Association Journal

The Fake Oil Stock Sale Was Opened With Prayer

Listen to this one! It is a typical case. A tract of land, just ordinary land, nothing about it to indicate there is oil beneath the surface. An oil rig, a few tools, half a dozen strings of pipe are close at hand. A large show tent filled with chairs that will seat several hundred people. It is 10 a. m. The sun is shining brightly, and it is a glorious day.

Presently several large busses draw up loaded with people ranging in age from fifty years to eighty. A corps of high-pressure salesmen rush out to greet the arrivals and to assure them that they are most welcome to what will be the next great oil city of America. The aged and feeble minded are tenderly conducted to comfortable chairs under the big tent. In plain view of those seated as they peer out through the flap of the tent stands majestically the oil rig spattered with crude oil and nearby is the big oil sump also filled with oil. Through an ingenious circulating system oil from the sump flows into the well and back into the sump through a pipe in full view.

Religious Revival Methods

Presently the official lecturer calls the meeting to order. The impression he creates is that he is either a minister or has studied for the ministry. He opens the meeting with prayer for the success of the venture in oil. After prayer this sanctimonious gentleman tells how he has invested all of his own earnings and all of his children's savings in the venture, so confident is he that it is to be an oil gusher and all are to be made rich.

He charms his audience with his oratory. He impresses them with his honesty. He calls their attention to oil in plain view, intimating that it is from the well. And while he is painting before them, figuratively speaking, luxury and old age comforts if they invest in the "A-A" Oil Company, the foreman of the rig rushes in, his clothes spattered with crude oil. He is excited and almost out of breath as he reaches the sanctimonious lecturer. A few words are whispered. The lecturer's face registers at delight at the news. He turns to his audience, a smile of victon his face. The foreman rushes excitedly back to the derrick, wrench in hand.

"We have drilled to the 'Bell' sand!" the lecturer shouts, bringing cheers from every high-pressure salesman, followed by a chorus of voices from the surprised audience. "We can bring in a 5,000 barrel well if we care to, but if we go deeper to the 'Meyer' sand we can get a 12,000 barrel well!" he adds. "Go on deeper! Go on down!" shout the salesmen almost in unison, followed by cheers from the listeners.

The zero hour is at hand. The time has come for the high-pressure artists to sign up the listeners for units. The salesmen "hit while the iron is hot." Nearly every listener is signed up. The few who hesitate are forgotten only momentarily, for the tables are brought in and the big free lunch made ready. As all sit down at least one salesman is at every table. The work cut out for him is to sign up the few who escaped the first "pulling of the net," and you may take my word for it few escape.

One by one these old people, under the spell of being rushed into the deal, pay over their cash, sign notes or turn over good securities for units in the "A-A" Oil Company.

This picture of an oil speculation may seem too crooked to be true, but it is a real story of how thousands of savings depositors, all past the age of fifty, lost over half a million dollars. This story is one of many hundreds that might be told, all of which have ended disastrously for millions of investors.

(Article II will reveal further fraudulent schemes for robbing workers of their savings.)

Truth and Advertising Have Made America Great

Truth in news columns and advertising is the foundation of America's prosperity, Melvin A. Traylor, Second Vice President American Bankers Association, recently said, adding:

"Continuance of our prosperity rests chiefly upon continuation of the greatest of all causes for our present good times—truth in news columns, truth over the store counters and truth in advertising. World-wide acceptance of great discoveries and inventions has been due to the fact that the newspapers truthfully described them and the manufacturers truthfully advertised them. If deceit had been the general rule, if the motto had been 'sell quick and let the buyer beware,' the public would have turned against the new things. I recall one particularly large firm which three years ago began advertising its wares falsely; it is today hopelessly bankrupt.

"Wise advertising costs nothing. You have only to increase the sale of your products to the point that covers the advertising charge to enjoy the enlarged business without cost. The natural saving in overhead is extra profit for dividends or for further expansion."

Tax-exempt securities are increasing at the rate of almost one hundred million dollars a month. The United States treasury department recently estimated that the total of wholly tax-exempt securities, held outside of treasuries and sinking funds, had reached $14,384,000,000, more than eleven billion dollars of which had been issued by states, counties and cities. In other words, that much wealth is exempt from paying any taxes on its income.

A PROGRESSING INDUSTRY

Radio broadcasting is the subject of a national controversy as to its regulation in the future. How it is to be regulated, who will assign wave lengths and grant broadcasting privileges, has not been determined.

That the industry is taking its place as a public utility is self-evident. Regulation, however, must be along broad lines which will not stifle or cripple its development, and thereby injure the service to which the public is entitled.

ADULT CLASS IN OLD-FASHIONED DANCES BEING ORGANIZED

An adult class in folk dances and old-fashioned square dances is being organized for residents of Ocean Beach, and all who are interested are cordially invited to attend the first session Tuesday evening, May 25, at 8 p. m., at the school.

Interest in the revival of old-time dances is widespread throughout the country. A number of Ocean Beach residents have attended classes held in town and have long been wanting one at the beach, but hitherto no suitable place could be found. Now the kindergarten room of the school is being lighted and will be used for the class. Mrs. Albert Dumont is chairman of the committee arranging for the folk dancing, and Miss Roberta Winans will be the instructor.

OFFICERS ELECTED AND COMMITTEES APPOINTED BY O. B. WOMEN'S CLUB

The new board of directors of the Ocean Beach Women's club met with the newly appointed president, Mrs. W. W. Burch, at her home, Alligator Rock Lodge, Monday evening. An election of officers was held, chairmen of standing committee were appointed, and the general policy of the club for the new year was discussed.

A community clubhouse being, in the mind of the board, the greatest lack in the community life of the beach, it was decided to make this the chief object of this year's effort. If some public-spirited property owner will donate the lot, the club stands ready to be responsible for the building.

It was decided to change the time of meeting from the second Monday evening to the second Thursday afternoon, and to discontinue meetings during July and August. After the adjournment of the business meeting, Mrs. Burch became the charming hostess, and her guests were entertained delightfully in the dining room.

Elections and appointments were as follows: Miss Agnes G. Ells, first vice-president; Mrs. A. M. Morgan, second vice-president; Miss Rose Morrison, recording secretary; Mrs. Julia T. McGarvey, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Albert Dumont, treasurer; Mrs. Carrie Borcherdt, chairman of membership committee; Miss Roberta Winans, chairman civics committee; Mrs. Amy Cunningham, chairman program committee; Mrs. Roy Cline, social committee; and Mrs. A. M. Morgan, press committee.

"BILLY" ENGLAND SHARES FISH CATCH WITH FRIENDS

Last Sunday forenoon "Billy" England, proprietor of the Mission Beach Garage, went deep sea fishing with a party of friends. He returned in the afternoon with a big supply of white fish, mackerel and rock fish, and drove around the beach districts dividing his fine catch among many friends. The staff of "The Beach News" came in for a splendid portion of "Billy's" generosity, and thanks are herewith extended.

NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY NECESSARY FOR SUCCESS OF CLUB PROJECTS

Any club or organization of women in San Diego that has a press committee is invited to send representatives to the press conference to be held at the auditorium of the Community Welfare building next Monday, May 24, at 2:30 p. m.

There will be professional press women to present the editor's point of view and there will be club presidents and committee chairmen to give the club viewpoint.

Clubs depend so much nowadays on publicity for the success of their projects, and so few club women are trained for that branch of work, that such a conference is expected to be helpful to all.

The value of pictures, making the most of material, need for absolute accuracy and the relation of propaganda to publicity will be a few of the points touched upon at the conference.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE OF LITTLE MADELINE BOYD IN STREET ACCIDENT

About 5:45 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, Madeline Boyd, the loveable little six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Boyd, of 4985 Saratoga avenue, had a most miraculous escape from being killed by an auto on Bacon street, near the corner of Saratoga avenues.

In her eagerness to reach her mother, who was on the opposite side of the street, the child crossed the thoroughfare just behind a street car on the corner and ran directly in front of an auto driven by R. Standley of 1655 Garnet street, Pacific Beach.

Little Madeline was knocked down and her collar bone broken, besides suffering many minor bruises and contusions. She was rushed to the police station where emergency treatment was obtained and she is now under care of Dr. Geo. Bryan at the home of her parents. The driver of the auto was held to be blameless in the unfortunate accident.

PAIN AND SWEAT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

FISHIN' the Cedar in the spring,
Or down along Duck Crick,
Down where the brambles may be thick
And thorns on everything,
Although the brambles tore my clo'es,
I says, says I, "I don't suppose
That any trout was landed yet
Without a little pain and sweat."

Fishin' the Cedar in the May,
Or down along the Duck,
You learn that life ain't so much luck
Aso some folks seem to say.
The berry bushes tear your hide,
There's deadfalls by the water side,
But nothin' man will ever gain
Without a little sweat and pain.

Fishin' the Cedar all the years,
And Duck Crick and the rest,
I often found the fishin' best
When gray the sky appears.
On cloudy days they seem to bite;
From fishin' I have learned a sight;
God sends us blessin's lots of ways,
And lots of 'em on cloudy days.

Fishin' the Cedar in the spring,
Or Duck, or where you will,
I hope you keep on fishin' still
Through thorns, through everything.
You'll maybe learn the truth of life,
That victories are won with strife,
And nothin' good you ever get
Without a little pain and sweat.

THE THREE CRANES

"W-h-o-o-p!" called the Whooping Crane, and then repeated the call.

The Whooping Crane.

"Now what's the matter with you?" asked the Sarus Crane.

"You're a fine one to ask such a question," remarked the Demoiselle Crane.

"Glad you think so," said the Sarus Crane.

"But I don't think so," answered the Demoiselle Crane.

"What made you say such a thing, then?" asked the Sarus Crane.

"Don't you care whether you say what you mean or not? I should think if you did things that way, life would be very confusing and mixed-up for you.

"For instance, when you were hungry I suppose you would say:

"'I don't want another bite to eat. I am not in the least bit hungry.'

"Then when you felt wide awake I suppose you would say that you were sleepy.

"When you were sleepy I suppose you would say you were wide awake."

"Not a bit of it," said the Demoiselle Crane. "But don't let us quarrel about it."

"Oh, yes, let us quarrel. I love to fight and have scraps," said the Sarus Crane.

"In northern India, from where I came, we are considered quite cross with each other.

"When we're in captivity, or, to speak more simply, when we are not free but are in the zoo, we are a great deal worse.

"We will be very cruel if we get thoroughly angry."

"Please don't get angry with me," said the Demoiselle Crane, so named because the family are all such gentle, ladylike creatures.

They are also extremely sociable and friendly.

"I hate to quarrel," the Demoiselle Crane continued. "I am friendly.

"I don't make a fuss or become angry because I am in the zoo.

"I don't fight with others. I don't annoy others.

"I keep my health and don't cause anyone any trouble. Yes, I am a friendly little thing.

"I think it is a good way to keep one's health to be friendly and pleasant.

"Billie Brownie told me once when he came to see me that it was the best way.

"He said that people who were cross and ill-tempered got all out of sorts and began to feel poorly too.

"Of course he said there were plenty who got ill for other reasons they couldn't help.

"But he said there was no sense in making oneself miserable; and by keeping friendly and pleasant it made one feel so much better.

"Then, he said, one's health didn't get away from one when one was not looking.

"And also one's good spirits didn't get pushed out of the way by one's cross disposition."

"Well, I'm larger than you are," said the Sarus Crane, "but that isn't what makes the difference between us.

The Demoiselle Crane.

"It's just what you've been talking about. It's our dispositions.

"You are so pleasant and I am not.

"But please explain why you say things you don't mean."

"That was a little bit of a joke."

"I'm glad you didn't consider it much of a joke. I certainly did not," said the Sarus Crane.

"Neither of us knew really what the Whooping Crane was whooping about," said the Demoiselle Crane.

"Oh, neither of you bothered to notice me," said the Whooping Crane.

"I was just giving a good whoop to see if they could still hear me half a mile away, as they usually can. That's what I can do!"

MAUD POWELL

MAUD POWELL was considered the greatest woman violinist of America, some say the greatest woman violinist in the world!

She was all American, through and through, though in the days when she was making a reputation for herself, an American birth was considered a misfortune. Those unlucky enough to be born here ran abroad to study and changed their names to very complicated and foreign-sounding titles and returned to take the American homage as a regular European. But not so Maud Powell.

She was born August 22, 1868, in Peru, Ill., and began studying the violin when she was a mere infant—one should begin young if possible, she said. At the age of nine she was a "child prodigy" and played at large public performances, using both piano and violin. She even made occasional tours through the middle western states.

She went to Chicago to study when she was thirteen, and in a few years sailed for Leipzig, and studied there, and in Berlin, also in Paris, learning the best from the greatest teachers in every country. She played, by command, before royalty in London, but saved her real debut for her beloved America. From that time she was on tour—Europe, America, even South Africa—her fame steadily growing. Her husband was an Englishman, but her home was in America. She owned one of the world's most precious violins, one made by Guarmarius del Jesu.

Besides bringing out the works of American composers, she wrote a great deal for musical journals. She died in 1920.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE FIRST LIBRARY

TO THOSE who believe the present system of things is "all there is—there is no more," that ours is the only really civilized period the world has ever known, it might be enlightening to learn that, a few centuries before the advent of Christ there was established a library containing between six and seven hundred thousand "volumes," or "rolls." This was the great library or "twin libraries" of Alexandria, founded by the first of the Ptolemies. During the siege of Alexandria, in 48 B. C., when Julius Ceasar burned the shipping in the harbor, a large part of the library was destroyed.

Although most of the temples of Babylonia, which was the seat of a learned and literary people many hundreds of years before the advent of Christ, contained a library of clay tablets in the cuneiform writing of the day, the library at Alexandria, with its half-million "rolls" of manuscripts, is the first known library in the modern sense of the word.

After its destruction, the library at Alexandria was replaced by that of Pergamum in Asia Minor, which was presented by Antony as a gift to Cleopatra.

Subsequently we have the various libraries in Rome, which represented usually the spoils of war; the great library of Constantinople, founded in the Fourth century by Constantine; then the monastic libraries of the Middle Ages, and, beginning with the Fifteenth century in Germany, the university libraries which bear the closest resemblance that had yet been reached to libraries as we know them today.

Mother's Cook Book

One of the hardest lessons we have to learn in this life, and one that many persons never learn, is to see the divine, the celestial, the pure in the common, the near at hand—to see that heaven lies about us here in this world.—John Burroughs.

EARLY GOOD THINGS

A SALAD which is not only beautiful to look at and appealing to the taste is:

Asparagus in Baskets.

Prepare four medium-sized tomatoes, scooping out the centers, and set to chill after being scalded and peeled. Take one-half bunch of asparagus, the tip portion, cook until tender, then chill. To one cupful of mayonnaise add three-fourths of a teaspoonful of grated horseradish, one teaspoonful of onion juice, salt and cayenne to taste. Brush the tomato cups with the mayonnaise, dip the asparagus tips into it and arrange in the cups. Garnish with a handle made of green pepper and top with a rose of mayonnaise.

Puritan Soup.

Wash and pare three good-sized potatoes and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, reserving three cupfuls of the water. Press the potatoes through a potato ricer while still hot, then add the potato water and bring to the simmering point. Meanwhile, chop fine two cupfuls of watercress and add to the soup mixture, together with two cupfuls of hot milk, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Combine and add two tablespoonfuls of flour which has been well mixed to a paste in three tablespoonfuls of water. Stir until well blended, then add croutons of bread.

Celery in Cream.

Dice a quart of celery and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Heat one cupful of thin cream to which a tablespoonful of butter has been added, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a pinch of nutmeg and pepper. Drain the celery and pour the hot seasoned cream over it. Serve at once.

WHO SAID

"There is a spirit of resistance implanted by the Deity in the breast of man, proportioned to the size of the wrongs he is destined to endure."

CHARLES JAMES FOX, the author of these words, may justly be classed as one of the greatest of the English statesmen of the period when the American colonies were planning war on the mother country.

Throughout the conflict between England and her colonies across the sea, Fox took a liberal stand and urged upon the British leaders the error of their course in dealing harshly and unjustly with the Americans. Had the liberal ideas of Fox been accepted by his fellow statesmen, what is now the United States of America might still be a dominion of Great Britain.

Charles James Fox was born January 24, 1749, and was educated at Oxford. It is interesting to note that through the influence of his father he secured a seat in parliament before he was of legal age and began his active political career many years younger than many of his contemporaries. In the year 1770 he was appointed one of the lords of the admiralty, a position which he gave up two years later in order to accept the post of commissioner of the treasury.

For six years Fox was a supporter of the administration and then a quarrel with Lord North threw him into the ranks of the Whig opposition, where he and Burke and other liberals assailed the government to their hearts' content on the score of its American policy. A short time after on the defeat of Lord North and the accession of Lord Rockingham to the prime ministership, Fox was made secretary for foreign affairs.

Fox, differing from his old friend, Burke, at first supported the French revolution, but later he changed his views on the subject. He died in the year 1806.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

FIZZBANG FOZZLE

FIZZBANG FOZZLE had tried everything for his baldness. He had tried this and that and the other and gone back to this, all without avail, so now when he read of the convention of famous physicians from all over the world, a ray of hope lit up the darkness of his soul.

"I'll go there and tackle some of 'em as they're going in," he exulted.

And he went to the convention hall and stopped a whiskered gentleman with a Peruvian expression.

"Pardon me, doc," he said, "but I am suffering from acute hairlessness of the head, and I thought—"

"Baldness?—very simple. It is caused invariably by particles of soap in the ears. Here's my card, come and see me if you ever get to Peru."

The card read: "Bismuth Linoleum. Prelzo, Peru. Specialist in diseases of the ear and back of the ear."

The next man that Fozzle accosted replied: "Baldness?—nothing easier. It comes from being allowed to walk too early in infancy. My card." And he handed Fozzle a card reading "Finnan Dragoon, Lario, Mexico. Specialist in feet, especially toes."

In the course of the next half hour Doctor Lumbago, chin specialist from Brazil, told him baldness comes from talking too fast; Doctor Spraddis, nose specialist from Cuba, told him it comes from smelling corned beef and cabbage, and Doctor Riddish, nape-of-the-neck specialist from Yucatan, told him it comes from sleeping on the back in a draught, and then, gritting his teeth, Fizzbang Fozzle took to his heels and bought a wig.

FORMAL GOWNS FOR SUMMER; NEW BLOUSES FROM PARIS

AS GOWNS designed for our hours of leisure and pleasure glide across the social scenery—at tea, at bridge—at anything after midday, or in the evening, we become more and more aware of the support that lace lends to present modes. Few frocks, for any sort of formal wear, are laceless and the role of lace grows in importance as the degree of formality advances. First come those demure and charming full-skirted and long-sleeved frocks of taffeta, with their chemisettes, collars and cuffs of lace, looking so fine-grained and dignified—and so ingenuous! How much less interesting they would be without the saving grace of lace!

Following these quaint, straightforward and simple frocks, may glide in a sophisticated, carefully draped and very short satin dinner frock, its skirt veiled with lace that extends below the hem line, and finished with a long pointed jabot of satin falling at one side. Here we have an effective example of the hem line lengthened by lace—and we shall see many more gowns employing this fascinating idea. The very next frock may be a dignified affair of crepe, with long, graceful flaring sleeves, making a background for a panel and rippling revers of fine lace from neck to hem. Lace is the note of greatest importance here. It is used in endless ways on afternoon dresses of taffeta, or crepe, or georgette, in bandings on the skirts and decorations on the sleeves and bodices.

In evening dresses lace is even more important. In yokes, panels and

ADORNED WITH LACE

The blouse, considered independently—that is, without reference to some particular suit or skirt with which it is to be worn, plays a minor role in spring's fashion drama. But considered in connection with a suit or skirt, it becomes a subject of much importance, for stylists demand that it reveal some kinship to the rest of the costume. It may be own sister to the suit, or first cousin to the hat, if, in some particular, it carries a family resemblance—as, for example, a blouse of champagne-colored crepe, covered with green polka dots in the same shade of green as the suit it accompanies, or a blouse of gay and vivid colors worn with a dark suit and a hat that repeats the colors in the blouse. The blouse is really parading in the mode under an assumed name, or no name at all in the varied jumper dresses and the two-piece frocks that are having such a tremendous vogue.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding all this dependence of the blouse on other things, Paris sponsors, as always, the good style of both tunic and overblouse, which are intended to be important additions to the summer wardrobe and to play first and not second fiddle in the costume. For these blouses, skirts or slips are to be chosen that will make harmonious and inconspicuous backgrounds. In the accompanying sketch a tunic blouse and an overblouse are types of formal styles as Paris shows them. The tunic blouse at the left is made of finely plaited, light brown georgette crepe, with embroidery in dark brown, but may be developed in any wanted color, choosing a dark shade for the embroidery.

TWO MODELS FROM PARIS

The pretty overblouse at the right is made of navy blue, marocain crepe and embroidered in green and blue silk. In both blouses emphasis is placed on the sleeves, which are long and elaborated at the forearm.

For wear with tailored suits there are many high-necked blouses of plain or fancy silks and the scarf collar is an important feature in blouses of this type. The jabot is also an important note in these blouses, which are usually finished by a wide hip band and of about the length of the overblouse at the right of the sketch.

Among very promising aspirants for midsummer favor are overblouses of white crepe de chine for wear with white skirts. They are made with either high, open or round necklines and long sleeves.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

medallions, but more particularly for lengthening the hem lines of fashionable skirts, it has captivated the fancy of designers. Godets of lace let into skirts, tiered skirts of lace flouncings, inserts and panels of lace, dyed to match, all help build the airy evening frocks for summer. Then there is the revival of the lace petticoat worn under a bouffant taffeta, opening in a panel down the front, the robe-de-style with plain silk bodice and bouffant skirt of lace flouncing, and finally the all-lace dress, of which one example is pictured here. The lure of the feminine lies in lace and in lacy materials, and it is a universal lure—among the civilized.

HOW TO CLEAN OUT TRAP OF A SINK

Dirt and Grease Adheres to Side and Bottom.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All waste pipes and traps are subject to fouling. Dirt collects in the bottom and grease adheres to the sides. The United States Department of Agriculture in a new Farmers' bulletin, 1460, "Simple Plumbing Repairs in the Home," tells how to clear out ordinary fixture traps. Unscrew the clean-out plug, as shown in the illustration and wash out the obstructing matter or pull it out with a wire bent to form a hook. Small obstructions are often forced down or drawn up by the use of a simple rubber force cup (sometimes called "the plumber's friend") costing 30 to 60 cents. The cup is placed over the fixture outlet and the fixture is partially filled with water. The wood handle of the cup is then worked rapidly down and up, causing alternate expulsion of the water from beneath the cup and suction upward through the waste pipe and trap. If a trap and the waste pipe from it are clogged with grease, hair, or lint, it is best to open or disconnect the trap and dig out the greasy matter with a stick. The use of chemical solvents in waste pipes is explained in Farmers' Bulletin 1426, "Farm Plumbing."

Cleaning Out Sink Trap.

High Value of Banana

A banana is very high in food value, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. In fact, almost one-fourth is starch and sugar. In addition, it contains a small amount of protein, a trace of fat, and a small percentage of mineral matter. A banana should be fully ripe before using in order to get the best flavor and the most digestible condition. One authority in discussing food for young children suggests the occasional use of a little scraped ripe banana. In buying bananas, be sure the stem end is left on. In this way, the food is delivered in a sealed package. Baked bananas are good served in place of a starchy vegetable with meat or as dessert.

Serve Lamb Dishes Hot

Serve all lamb dishes piping hot on hot plates, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture. Because the fat of lamb hardens as it cools and sticks to the tongue, many persons are prejudiced against even the lean meat. Also serve with lamb currant, mint, barberry or some other tart jelly, or a tasty sauce flavored with parsley, mint, capers, tomato, horseradish, curry powder or chopped pickle. These "cut" the fat and tone down the pronounced flavor that appeals to many but not to all.

Five-Minute Cabbage Is Best to Save Vitamines

"I was boiled to death!" read the inscription on the cabbage tombstone in a "vitamine cemetery" which formed part of a vividly instructive pantomime staged by some school children not long ago. The excellent lesson of this entertainment, showing the importance of a short cooking period for all the vegetables valued for vitamines was easily understood by those present, and as the dramatic part of the lesson was followed by directions for preparing many common vegetable foods to conserve their vitamines, they also learned how to avoid "boiling them to death."

In addition to the fact that the vitamines in cabbage are destroyed by long cooking, there are several other advantages in cooking this vegetable as little as possible. The directions given below by the United States Department of Agriculture give a delicately flavored crisp cabbage dish which can be prepared in a very few minutes just before a meal, or prepared early in the day and quickly heated at serving time. The color is very attractive when green cabbage is used, and the kitchen and house are not filled with cabbage odor.

Wash and chop finely enough cabbage to make one quart. Simmer for about two minutes in one pint of hot milk, adding one and one-half teaspoonfuls of flour. Season with salt and pepper. Cover the cabbage and heat for three or four minutes without allowing the mixture to reach the boiling point. The vegetable should not entirely lose its crispness. If more convenient, the cabbage may be cooked in this way early in the day, set away to "ripen" or develop flavor for a few hours, and reheated quickly just before serving.

Have Pickled Tripe for Change on Family Table

Beef tripe, or stomach lining, is a good food which may be preserved by pickling when beef cattle are killed on the farm. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for preparing it:

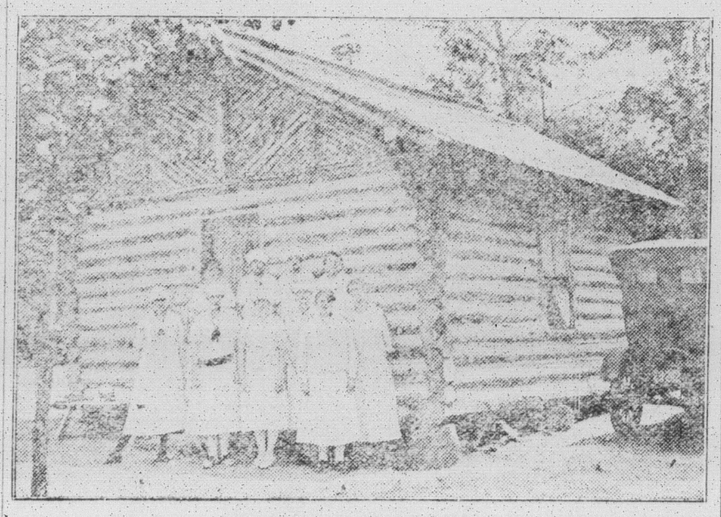
After the tripe has been thoroughly cleaned and rinsed in cold water, it should be scalded in hot water (a little below the boiling point). When sufficiently scalded, the inside lining of the stomachs may be removed by scraping, which will leave a clean, white surface. Tripe should be boiled until tender (usually about three hours) and then thoroughly chilled in cold water so that the fat may be scraped from the outside. When this has been done, peel off the membrane from the outside of the stomach, and the clean, white tripe is ready for pickling. It is usually pickled in 45 grain vinegar.

The pickled tripe is prepared for use by washing and wiping it, and after dipping convenient sized pieces in flour or egg and bread crumbs, frying it till golden brown.

To Distinguish Rayon

Artificial silk, or rayon, as it is generally called, can be distinguished from real silk because it is more lustrous than real silk, more stiff and harsh, and burns like cotton with a yellow flame that flashes along and leaves a small amount of gray ash. An exception is a brand of artificial silk recently introduced which gives a hard ball of ash. The yarns untwist very readily and the individual filaments spread apart in more or less of a fan shape. Artificial silk is usually weaker when wet. Therefore when garments made of it are laundered, they should be handled carefully and not rubbed. Do not wear rings when washing these articles, or you may tear holes in the fabric. Properly handled, this material is useful and attractive, the United States Department of Agriculture says.

BUILD COMMUNITY CLUB HOUSE FOR $28.85



Clubhouse Built for $28.85.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Community teamwork this year in Beulah, Carroll county, Ga., has resulted in a substantial and attractive woman's clubhouse, which is not only used for the monthly home demonstration meeting but for girls' club work, a community reading room and other uses. The small cost of $28.85 in actual money was made possible because no ground was purchased, permission being given to use the community school grounds, and all material except flooring and brick for the chimney was donated. The labor was furnished by the men of the community.

The house is built of logs. Gables inside and out are of birch poles, and these were also used inside the cabin underneath the rafters. On the front gable is the date of erection cut from smaller pieces of birch. Cracks between the logs are daubed with gray mud. Around the walls inside are cushioned puncheon benches. The house is furnished with the most-needed articles, donated by the members of the woman's club. It has at present a stove, table, curtains and utensils for demonstrations. The monthly club meetings are alternately demonstration programs and recreational meetings attended by entire families. A library will be gradually developed.

NO WOMAN CAN KEEP HOUSE EFFICIENTLY

Without Good Health

MRS. FRANK DINDORE

Four Walls Can Make a House, but it takes a Woman to Make a Home

To be a successful homemaker, a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as these women did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lancaster, Ohio.—"For ten years after my marriage, I had poor health. I was on a visit to my sister in Utica, Michigan, and she had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Her husband got me a bottle and I took it and felt so much better that I got a second one. Now, whenever I feel run-down I take the Vegetable Compound and soon feel all right again. I have had three little girls in the last six years and do all my housework, sewing, washing, and ironing. My time is pretty well taken up, but I will answer any letters I receive."—MRS. FRANK DINDORE, 823 Pierve Avenue, Lancaster, Ohio.

Sturgis, Michigan.—"I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and have recommended it to others. I took it to give me strength before my baby was born. I would have to stop work and lie down sometimes all the afternoon. I felt as if I did not care whether anything was done or not. I got tired out so easily. One day I found a little book on my porch and that night I showed it to my husband and he went down town and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has helped me so much that I was soon able to do my work, and when my baby was born, my nurse, Mrs. Forbes, said it was the easiest birth she had ever attended. I will be more than pleased if I am helping someone else by giving my testimonial."—MRS. EDWARD PERSING, 208 Surprise Ave., Sturgis, Michigan.

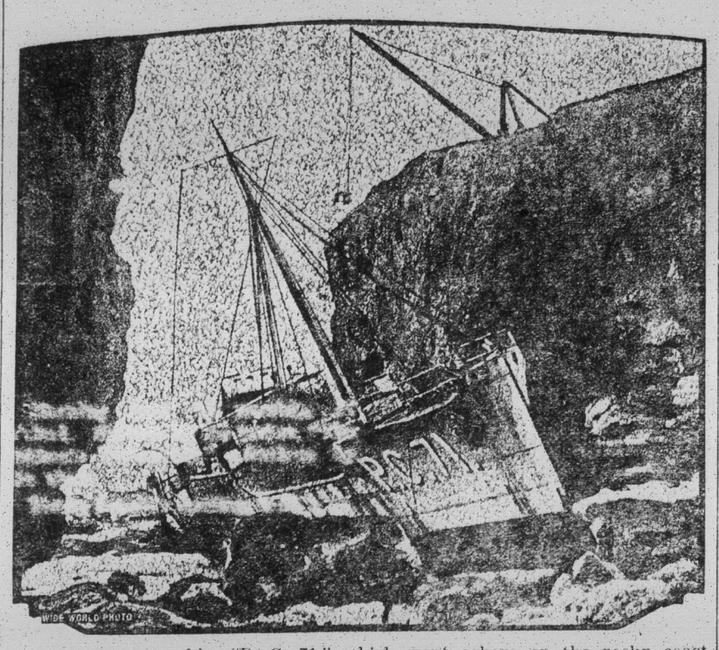
Mystery Ship Goes Ashore



This mystery ship, "P. C. 71," which went ashore on the rocky coast south of the Tyne, England, is now in the hands of ship wreckers, as it was found impossible to float her. The picture shows a crane, erected on top of a cliff, lifting out some of the engine-room gear.

Ocean Beach School Notes

Miss Kate Spani, Principal

Written for "The Beach News"
By Bonnie Johnston, Grade 6-A

Monday afternoon Mrs. Tilton came to the Ocean Beach school. She gave some children of the 6-A and 6-B grades a test.

The children of Mrs. Gilpin's 3-A room have been reading about little fairy folks called Teenie Weenie. These little people are about as tall as a match, and live in a small village under a rose bush.

The children have made the Teenie Weenie village on a sand table. The Teenie Weenies live in an old shoe which is called Shoehurst. Their school is held in an old hat and is called "Sappschoot." The Teenie Weenie Chinaman's laundry is in an old teapot. The Teenie Weenie sailor is shown doing a high dive into a cup of water. One of the most interesting things is the "Man-Eating Caterpillar."

OUR GARDEN

Written for "The Beach News"
By Marjorie Haggard, 3-B Grade

We have a sand table in our school room. There are all kinds of plants growing in it. In the middle of the garden is a Japanese pool in which a radish is growing.

Our teacher said we might bring any kind of seed we wished. We planted potatoes, carrots, sunflowers, corn, radishes, four o'clocks, beets, goldenrod and cotton.

We have enjoyed watching the plants grow. When the beans grow the bean seed comes right up out of the ground, but when the corn grows it looks like grass.

TALES OF FISH THAT FURNISH FINNY FACTS FROM THE BAY FRONT

Jack Neumont, proprietor of the Ocean Beach Bait House, says that smelt are due to run in great numbers on May 28, 29, 30 and 31. This will be joyful news to holiday folks as the dates include Decoration Day, before and after.

Schools of large fish are traveling back and forth these nights through the inlet and fisher folks with spears are having great sport on the Mission Bay bridge, harpooning sharks, jewfish and the like, by lantern and torchlight.

A full-fledged South American ant eater is on exhibition at the Ocean Beach Bait House, and having cleaned up all the pestiferous little pests, it now has chopped steak and milk as a daily repast.

EXPLOSION IN DRUG STORE

An alcohol lamp exploded in the prescription department of Kraft's Drug Store on Newport avenue at Bacon street last Wednesday, causing damages amounting to about $100. Quick action by Druggist Fred Kraft prevented what might have turned out to be a very serious blaze.

Mission Beach School Notes

Written for "The Beach News" By Pupils Under Direction of Miss Sarellen Morgan

Roma Tidwell has entered the 4-A grade. She transferred here from Logan school.

There were three performances of the play, "The Strongest Boy in the World." It was given twice Friday and again on Monday for the benefit of the little children. The play points out the health value in milk, fruit and vegetables. The cast included Charles Miller, Nera Reama, Jack Horner, Billy Roberts, Jesse Barnhill, Bobby Gibson, Paul Young, and Ben McMicken.

Every girl in the upper grades won a Scottish Rite badge for good citizenship this quarter. We are proud of that record.

We are much interested in a new house which is being built just across from the school. We hope a large family of children will live there.

Heard And Seen On Stage And Screen

Balboa Theater

Only Corinne Griffith and one hunred trunks pack-crammed with gowns could produce anything so exquisite as the revival of Victor Herbert's famous opperetta, "Mademoiselle Modiste", which comes to the Balboa Theatre on Saturday.

The picture is an adaption of the opperetta in which Fritzi Scheff won such success several years ago, and who gave the ever popular song, "Kiss Me Again," its permanent place as a musical hit.

In "Mademoiselle Modiste," Norman Kerry plays opposite Corinne Griffith. Kerry is a dashing French cavalry officer in this picture. Willard Louis, robust comedian, has been cast as Hiram Bent in the picture and will be seen at his best.

Graced with striking color and stage artistry, Fanchon and Marco will present their "Paper Idea", in which Lestra La Monte, a second Julian Eltinge, appears with the Sunkist Beauties in costumes made of paper. Opera capes, evening and afternoon frocks, hoop skirts and hula costumes vie with each other in a succession of beautiful designs and originality.

A renowned comedy team, "Lee Mason and Sunny," claim a share of the honors in the unusual stage presentation with their particular number. A note of secrecy is established by them in confusing the audience as their identity. This furnishes a basis for considerable comedy which they have never failed to put over successfully.

George Stolberg and the Balboa Music Masters are presenting a programm of popular operatic numbers synchronized with "Mademoiselle Modiste," and the Fanchon and Marco "Paper Idea." The Junior Matinee Saturday will be featured with Jack London's story, "The Call of the Wild."

Cabrillo Theater

Everybody likes Harold Lloyd, if the crowds attending the Cabrillo Theatre are an indication, where Harold is showing his latest pictures, "For Heavens Sake!" now starting on its third successful week.

A humain note is dominant in Harold Lloyd's new picture, "For Heavens Sake!" This process of evolution, which has been steadily advanced through "Grandma's Boy", "Saftey Last," "Girl Shy" and "The Freshman," is continued with his initial Paramount release now showing at the Cabrillo Theatre.

Briefly, the story is that of a rich boy who discovers after a life of idle ease and luxury that real hapiness is to be found in helping others. His experiences in the slums of a big city, where he goes to assist a hard-working, though none to successful missionary, are hysterically humorus, yet get over the thought Lloyd sought to impress when he started to make the picture.

Jobyna Ralston, who added feminine distinction to several of Lloyd's former successes, again lends her charms and beauty to the role of leading lady. It is for the love of her that Harold goes thru many trials and tribulations in his effort to reform a group of hardboiled gangsters.

In addition to Lloyd's picture, a United States Navy educational, "Over the Bounding Main," a Felix Comedy and the West Coast Kinograms, is shown. Raymond Godden at the organ furnishes some catchy popular selections.

A feature of the Weekly News is the Kentucky Derby showing the race with "Bubbling Over" the winner.
